The Queen had said, “Get it all, I want riches more,
Attack the Dragon and fort, and break its walls and door.”
The fiery Dragon guarded the treasure with all his might,
“Back off, you won’t get this, it’s not right.”
The King yelled, “You will pay with your life,
The jewels and gems will be adorning my wife.”
The soldiers aimed arrows, spears and cannon,
All these were of no use as nothing harmed the Dragon,
He opened his mouth, and let out a big flame,
Lashed his tail that put the King’s army to shame.
His eyes were red with rage and fury,
He knew they would kill him and bury,
But, his duty was to protect the treasure that was precious,
So, he turned dangerous and extremely ferocious.
The soldiers were soon dead, some down the mountain rolled,
The King lost the battle, was left in the cold,
All his strength and might couldn’t help him win,
The Dragon wanted the King to realise his sin.
The Dragon roared, “The treasure is for the good of people,
Build hospitals, schools, roads, it is quite simple,
It is not for you or anyone from your family.”
The King made up his mind to work for the welfare of his people, really.

He beat the drum with his front paws and thought that there was some small animal hiding in it. He thought he could get a tasty meal if he opened the drum. But with all his efforts, he could not tear off the top of the drum. Suddenly the jackal had a bright idea. He kept beating the drum and soon a leopard came by. The jackal said " Oh mighty one ! There is an animal inside the drum. Use your sharp teeth and pose to tear the top of the drum and eat that animal." The leopard pounced upon the drum. But he was very angry when he could not find any animal in it. He turned to the jackal and said "You cheat ! There is nothing to eat inside the drum. You have wasted lot of my time.
